

Wednesdays In Mississippi

Proper Ladies Working for Radical Change

A New Play by Nicole Burton

The fourth play in Pipeline Playwrights' Our Time, Our Stories series is Nicole Burton's *Wednesdays in Mississippi.

Adapted from the book by Debbie Z. Harwell and directed by Rikki Howie Lacewell, the play tells the story of Dorothy Height and Polly Cowan, who launched a civil rights project in 1964 amidst killings, threats, and bombings.

The women forged alliances, helped integrate the schools, and aided the Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party.
